GOSPEL REFLECTION:

In the Gospel we hear the call of the Shepherd, and we rejoice that we are his flock that knows his voice. The voice of the Shepherd is at the heart of the Church. On this Sunday the whole Church prays that men and women will be receptive to his voice. We pray that those whom he calls to religious life and the priesthood will be able and willing to respond to that call. This reality, which is played out deep in the heart, is hugely important for the life of Church. But we must not forget that the voice of the Shepherd speaks to each and every baptized person, calling each of us to live a life that look towards God. Moreover, we are called to enable each other in finding our particular path and sticking to it. No two people will follow the exact same path and yet all the paths along which he leads will open to green pastures, for this is why he came. "I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly." There are no dead ends, if they are listening to his voice and following him.
