REFLECTION WORLD MISSION SUNDAY

In today's Gospel, Jesus is asked a tricky question about paying taxes to Caesar. We know how to recognize Caesar's image on a coin. But whose image do we carry? We are made in the image of God! Our lives, our gifts, and our hearts belong to him.

This is the heart of World Mission Sunday. Mission is not just about priests and religious travelling to distant countries. It begins wherever we are, in our homes, workplaces, schools, and parish communities. Every Christian is called to make Christ known through love, kindness, forgiveness, and service.

Think of a family where one person is struggling. Someone takes time to listen, another offers encouragement, and another quietly helps without expecting anything in return.
Nobody may call it missionary work, but Christ is being made visible. Sometimes, the most powerful sermon is not preached from a pulpit; it is lived around the kitchen table!
In our first reading, God says through the prophet Isaiah, "I am the Lord, and there is no other" (Isaiah 45:5). God can work even through unexpected people and circumstances.
And St. Paul reminds us today that faith is expressed in "work of faith and labour of love" (1 Thessalonians 1:3).

Today, we pray for missionaries throughout the world and support their work. But we must also ask ourselves: Am I helping others encounter Jesus?

What gifts has God given me to share with others?

How can I make Christ's love visible in my family and community?

What practical sacrifice can I offer this week for the Church's missionary work?

Remember always that the coin bears Caesar's image, but our hearts bear God's image and likeness. Give Caesar his coin but let's give God our hearts and let the whole world encounter Jesus through us.
