GOSPEL REFLECTION

Today's readings place forgiveness at the heart of Christian life. Sirach warns us against anger and resentment, reminding us that we cannot expect God's mercy while refusing mercy to others. In the Gospel, Peter asks Jesus how many times he must forgive someone who hurts him. Jesus answers, "seventy-seven times." He teaches us that forgiveness is not about counting offences; it is about becoming people of mercy. The servant exposes a temptation we all know: we want understanding for ourselves, but sometimes demand perfection from others. We can carry old hurts, words spoken in anger, misunderstandings, disappointments, or failures. Forgiveness does not mean that the hurt was unimportant. It means we refuse to allow yesterday's wound to control today's relationship. Paul reminds us that whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord. Therefore, Christ must shape how we treat one another. The Eucharist gives us strength to live this teaching. At every Mass, we approach Christ as people who need mercy. As we receive Him, we are called to carry His mercy into our homes. May the Eucharist soften our hearts and heal our wounds.

OCIA— the Order of Christian Initiation of Adults is the process by which adults enter the Catholic Church. It is not a class or a test. It is a journey of faith, accompanied by the community of the Church, that leads to the sacraments of Baptism, Confirmation, and Eucharist. If you are interested in exploring the Catholic faith, please call the office at: 613-389-8222
