GOSPEL REFLECTION:

The first of the two appearances of Christ described in today’s Gospel occurs Easter Sunday evening, “the first day after the Sabbath,” or the first day of the week, and the second appearance, the episode with Thomas, takes place “eight days later,” that is, again on the first day after the Sabbath (or of the week). The insistence on the day of the two appearances shows St. John the Evangelist’s intention to tell us that Jesus’ meeting with his followers in the upper room is the reason why the Church’s assembly is on Sunday, the first day of the week. Jesus is present among his disciples in the Sunday Eucharist; he gives them peace and the Holy Spirit; they touch his wounded and risen body, making a profession of faith, they proclaim, like Thomas, “My Lord and my God.”

Today is also Mercy Sunday, when we are reminded of the infinite mercy of Christ, that is able to bring forgiveness no matter how many sins we commit and assures us that God accepts us in our weakness. The lesson is that God’s mercy is revealed slowly, not because God wants it that way, but because we are slow to comprehend just as the disciples were. The description of the slowness of the disciples in all the gospels gives us hope for ourselves. It takes time, even a lifetime, to comprehend fully the merciful love of God revealed in Jesus.

From Archbishop Mulhall – Returning to Sunday Mass: I understand there are still some members of the faithful who, for reasons of health, do not yet feel able to return to Mass. It has always been the teaching of the Church that it is not a breach of the Sunday Obligation when a Catholic is impeded from attending Mass in person because of situations such as ill health or care for the sick. We are a Eucharistic people for whom attendance at Mass is essential. I invite all Catholics who have not yet done so to return to attending Mass in person this Pentecost Sunday, May 28, 2023. Nourished by our encounter with the Risen Lord Jesus, fed by His Body and Blood in Holy Communion, we receive the grace and strength to serve the Lord and glorify Him with our lives. It is to be the foundation stone of our lives, bringing together every aspect of our life and mission. In the days to come let us cultivate a deeper desire for the Real Presence of the Lord. The Eucharist is the cause of our deepest joy, enabling us to offer our profoundest thanks to God.

Thank you – to everyone who contributed to make our liturgies so lovely during the Easter Triduum.
